

Excavation of a National Treasure

In May 2008, teams from the University of British Columbia and Atlantic Veterinary College excavated the 20 year old remains of a blue whale near Tignish. Join us as AVC Wildlife Pathologist, Dr. Pierre-Yves Daoust, speaks about his experience, using the excavation to illustrate some remarkable adaptations of these magnificent animals to their environment. A question and answer session will follow the presentation and some biological specimens will be available for viewing.

The presentation will take place on Thursday, December 4, 2008, from 7:00 – 8:30 p.m. in Lecture Theatre A at the Atlantic Veterinary College. Everyone is welcome, admission is free, and refreshments will be served. Donations to the Friends of AVC gratefully accepted.

For information: (902) 566-0589; upei.ca/avc

Part of the AVC Community Workshop Series